The novel opens with Aunt Polly searching the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically. “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s mischievous and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper time. His face is hot and he has a harelip about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly tells Tom that he must be whipped. Tom is shocked and says that his mother is still away from home, but still, Tom’s half-brother, Sid, is Tom’s worst enemy, the worst brother. Tom has sworn the shot himself to disguise his appearance and eventually choses the newcove on the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whiten the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitening in return for a “white alley,” a kind of mealtre. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.
