Causality Of Psychological Injury Presenting Evidence In Court
The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s mischievous and how the boys must get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper time with a black eye and a bandage on his head and shoves his that his collar is still tied from his 13. Aunt Polly is satisfied, but sad. Tom’s half-brother, Huck, has been in the hospital for weeks after a fall from his horse.

Tom goes out of the house and into the street for some fresh air. He sees a man wandering about and says, “Hello, man!” The man answers, “Hello, young’un.” Tom continues, “What’s your name?” The man replies, “I’m Mark Twain.” Tom has heard the story of Mark Twain, the famous writer, and is excited to meet him.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of miracle. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.

After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sorrowfully on Tom's naughtiness and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper in a stew, having been caught drinking beer and skipping school. During supper, Aunt Polly tells Tom that his teeth will be knocked out if he does not clean his room. Tom offers to do so if he can stay up late to play. Aunt Polly agrees, and Tom goes off to play. Tom and his cousin Becky Thatcher are later caught playing king of the castle, and Tom is sent to bed without dinner for his disobedience.

Tom goes out of the house to play, and while doing so, he spies a drunkard and the woman who had been cheating him. Tom and the woman go off together, and eventually, she takes the woman all the way home.

The focus of this paper is on what role dynamic risk factors should play in the development of explanations of crime. Following a discussion of the nature of explanation we propose that in their current form dynamic risk factors should not be regarded as causes of crime because they cannot be coherently conceptualized as causal mechanisms.

To enhance patient safety, data about actual clinical events must be collected and scrutinized. This paper has two purposes. First, it provides an overview of some of the methods available to collect and analyze retrospective data about medical errors, near misses, and other relevant patient safety events. Second, it introduces a methodological approach that focuses on non-routine events (NRE...
