The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her niece, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects wistfully on Tom’s misdeeds and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper time and reveals that he has been to see a man about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly asks Tom what happened at school that afternoon and learns that he had been skipping school that day. She is appalled and demands that he go back to school. Tom and his aunt have a heated argument and eventually choose the new school as a compromise.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirty clothes and decides to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom asks him to let him do some of the whitewashing in return for a “sand alley,” a load of marble. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his task.

Tom comes home at supper. Aunt Polly gives him his dinner, but the bowl is empty. She learns that Tom has been skipping school that afternoon and earns more money by delivering newspapers. Tom’s pal Huck Finn is sent to the schoolhouse to bring Tom back. Aunt Polly is satisfied, but Tom’s half-brother Sid shows her that Tom’s clothes are still covered in jam, but Sid, Tom’s half-brother, has turned himself in to disguise his dirtiness.

Tom goes out of the house into the street. His heart is full of joy. As he walks the streets of St. Petersburg, Tom feels the excitement and anticipates the adventure and eventually the news comes all the way home.
