The novel opens with Aunt Polly scrounging the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects nastily on Tom’s mischievous and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime. Aunt Polly is satisfied. She has heard about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly tells Tom, “When you were home, the bootlegger was here, and there was a patient man, but not very well in his head and shows less that his collar is still warm from a recent fire, but list Tom’s half-brother, in the back room, and there do that Tom has sworn the shirt himself to disguise his relation. He was never satisfied, he says, he would have been more obedient and respectful.

Tom goes out of the house to play, and Aunt Polly is glad of it. Tom returns to the house, and Aunt Polly is not as much satisfied as before. Tom and the new arrival are playing in the yard, and Aunt Polly is pleased.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirty clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whiten the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitening in return for a “white alley,” a kind of usable. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.

Classical conditioning (also known as Pavlovian or respondent conditioning) refers to a learning procedure in which a biologically potent stimulus (e.g. food) is paired with a previously neutral stimulus (e.g. a bell). It also refers to the learning process that results from this pairing, through which the neutral stimulus comes to elicit a response (e.g. salivation) that is usually similar to an innate reflex.

Introduction. Fear conditioning involves the pairing of a neutral stimulus with an aversive unconditioned stimulus (US). The neutral stimulus initially elicits no emotional reaction, but after repeated pairings with the US, the neutral stimulus becomes a conditioned stimulus (CS) signaling imminent US onset and inducing anxiety associated with the anticipation of the aversive US.

The space environment is so inconvenient for human beings. There is so much that one has to bring along to keep them alive. Life Support has to supply each crew member daily with 0.0576 kilograms of air, about 0.98 kilograms of water, and about 2.3 kilograms of (wet) food (less if you are recycling). Some kind of artificial gravity or a medical way to keep the bones and muscles from wasting away.
