The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom's mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper time, dressed in his new Sunday clothes, and looking particularly well-hung about his shoulders. During supper, Aunt Polly asks Tom about his adventures. He had been left at school that afternoon and wentstraightupthestairs to the attic, where he found his clothes still there from his last visit. He had been looking for his帽子and shoes but, of course, Tom’s full brother, Sid, had taken Tom’s hat off the hat rack and buried it under the leaves of the tree outside. Aunt Polly is satisfied.

Tom and the new arrival excitedly discuss the new neighbor, Alonzo Beverley. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, Tom and his friends see a procession and eventually chase the newcomers all the way home.

When he retuns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whiten the frock. He gets up early, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitening in return for a “wine alley,” a kind of snuff. Tom almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and closes him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.
