The novel opens with Aunt Polly screeching the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom's mischievous and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime. His school reports have arrived. He has been skipped school that afternoon and spent his time playing cards with two of his schoolmates in a deserted schoolhouse. Aunt Polly is satisfied, but still, Tom's half-brother, Joe, Solano, is not pleased. Joe has warned the boy himself to desist his wicked ways.

Tom goes out of the house in a sulk and wanders down the streets of St. Petersburg. He sees a man with a horse and carriage, and eventually, he sees a group of men dressed in black avenues and horses and carriage. He decides to follow them.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get Jim to do some of the whitewashing in return for a 'white alley,' a kind of marble. Tom almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.
