Truth And The Unconscious In Psychoanalysis The New Library Of Psychoanalysis
The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom's misdeeds and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper time. He is very much excited about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly asks Tom if he has been to school that afternoon and even mentions that he should be dropped off at school soon. He tells her that his teacher is still away from the school, but he is doing his homework. Aunt Polly is satisfied.

Tom goes out of the house to wander about the streets of St. Petersburg. He is not regular in his school attendance and eventually chances the newcomer all the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Jan passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a "white alley," a kind ofmedicine. Jan almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his task.
