The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects serenely on Tom's mischief and how she let him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper. No milk; he has been skipping school that afternoon and went over to the river to take a boat ride. He has not been kept in school since he was nine years old. Aunt Polly is satisfied.

Tom goes out of the house in a huff. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, he finds a man who has just come from Munich, Germany. Tom and the new arrival chat for a while and eventually choose the newcomer as the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a "white alley," a kind of marble. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chased him off, leaving Tom alone with his task.

Tom comes home at suppertime. He is rather dirty and ill-looking. He has been skipping school that afternoon and went around picking up boys and girls to play football in St. Petersburg. He has not been on the beach and shows less that his clothes are still grave from the tobacco. But yet, Tom’s half-brother, Joe Harper, is still away from home, a fact that Aunt Polly is satisfied. Tom has enrolled the school himself to disguise his absence. He is now doing better in his studies.

Tom goes out of the house in the evening. He is lost in thought. While wondering about his adventures. Daring supper, Aunt Polly asks Tom about his whereabouts. He has been playing football and has not been on the beach. Aunt Polly is satisfied.
